A diagram of a cyclone showing wind directions and pressure gradient. The diagram consists of concentric circles representing pressure levels. Arrows indicate wind direction, which is inward from the outer edges and then curves inward, showing a cyclonic (counter-clockwise in the Northern Hemisphere) inward spiral. The center is marked with a star-like symbol. The cardinal directions are labeled: N (North) at the top, S (South) at the bottom, E (East) on the left, and W (West) on the right. A large arrow points from the center towards the bottom, labeled 'N', indicating the direction of the pressure gradient or the path of the system.

Prepared from the registers named on the page each finding sits on. Where a register could not be read, this document says so in its place rather than leaving the gap to be read as a clean result.
