PURPOSE
Residential

The approval as the planning authority issued it, reproduced in full behind this page.

An approval speaks to what was sanctioned, not to what was built. Completion is a separate record.

A diagram showing a 2x4 grid of windows. The grid is composed of 8 rectangular cells. Each cell contains a window with a single vertical pane on the left and two smaller square panes on the right. The grid is surrounded by dimension lines: a vertical line on the left indicates a height of 7.31, a vertical line on the right indicates a height of 8.51, a horizontal line at the top indicates a width of 1.20, and a horizontal line at the bottom indicates a width of 1.20.

Figure 1 is a cross-sectional diagram of a three-story building. The total height is 8.51m. The structure consists of a parapet wall at the top, followed by weathering courses, an R.C. Roofslab (1:2.4), and brick work in c.m 1:6. Below this is another weathering course, R.C. Roofslab (1:2.4), and brick work in c.m 1:6. The middle section is divided into three stories, each with a height of 3.01m. The ground floor is supported by three R.C. columns. The floor is finished with floor finishing, sand filling, and plastering in c.m 1:5. The roof is supported by R.C. lintel/concrete. The diagram also shows the R.C. column and the R.C. Roofslab (1:2.4) at the base.

Prepared from the registers named on the page each finding sits on. Where a register could not be read, this document says so in its place rather than leaving the gap to be read as a clean result.
